CHAMBERLAIN STALLS ON RESIGNATION

Summons Mystery Parley

King Flees Bomber...

CHAMBERLAIN STILL HOLDS ON IN NEW MYSTERY MOVE

LONDON, May 9 (AP)—Amid indications Prime Minister Chamberlain intended to remain in office despite the fiery criticism of his conduct of the war, which trimmed his majority in the House of Commons to 81 votes, British leaders met in mysterious conferences today.

The conferences developed suddenly while Commons debated a government motion to adjourn for the regular Whitsuntide holiday until May 21 and while the nation speculated whether the Chamberlain government might resign or undergo reconstruction.

After a whispered consultation among government leaders on the front bench in the House of Commons, the badgered Chamberlain left with the seven men who form his war cabinet.

'CHUTES DROP NAZIS AT NARVIK

STOCKHOLM, May 9 (AP)—The German air force was reported today to have dropped parachute troops just northeast of Narvik for rear attack on the allied forces besieging the German garrison at that Norwegian ore port, far above the Arctic circle.

These were said to have been reinforcements for other parachute troops dropped behind the allied siege ring, but there was no indication whether large enough numbers had been dropped to threaten the offensive in Narvik.

The situation was reported at least temporarily stalemated by heavy snowstorms, with the Germans still clinging to entrenched positions on a mountain which slopes steeply down to Narvik from a peak near the Swedish border.

The Allies apparently are now using skilled French Alpinists and specially trained Polish units in an effort to gain positions from which they can shell the Germans out of their machine gun emplacements.

But the Allies still are unable to neutralize the advantage the Germans have through their air attacks. Constant patrol skirmishes have failed to produce any decisive result.

Only a short time later they were followed out of the chamber by the leader and deputy leader of the official opposition, Laborites Clement R. Attlee and Arthur Greenwood, the leader of the opposition Liberals, Sir Archibald Sinclair, and sharp-tongued David Lloyd George, elder statesman and prime minister of the World War.

The departure provoked speculation whether they were to take part in a war cabinet conference regarding possible entry into a broad, coalition government.

REFORM OR RESIGN

The general feeling in the country was that either Chamberlain must reconstruct the government or resign. He emerged last night from two days of debate of the war, particularly in Norway, with a majority of only 81 votes—281 to 200—compared with his normal majority of 210.

Speculation on what Chamberlain would do was conflicting. Some informed politicians expected him to tender his resignation to King George VI, who then would ask him to form a new government.

Allied-Soviet Pact May Block Rome-Berlin Axis in Balkans

BELGRADE, May 9 (AP)—Parallel reports of steps toward both Soviet Russian and Allied protection of Yugoslavia were viewed today in Balkan diplomatic quarters as evidence of possible Russian-British-French co-operation against the Rome-Berlin axis in this corner of Europe.

There is this important distinction in the two reported moves affecting Yugoslavia:

The Yugoslavs appear to be turning toward Russia for support while the British and French seek Yugoslavia's acceptance of their proffered guarantee of her independence and territorial integrity.

Whether Yugoslavia is looking for help from Russia as well as from the western powers was not clear. It is possible that her greater inclination is toward the East.

At any rate, the possibility of Russia's entrance into the Balkan picture with a military link to Yugoslavia, at a time when the Allies and the Axis powers are accusing each other of preparing to invade little countries, might stave off war in the Balkans.

But for how long, or with what other long-range results, no one could calculate.

MISSION TO MOSCOW

It was learned authoritatively in Belgrade that a Yugoslav military mission headed by Gen. Vojin Maximovic, inspector of national defense, would leave shortly for Moscow and military consultations with Russian leaders.

The beller was expressed in quarters close to the government that a Yugoslav-Russian military alliance might result from the visit.

The prospective mission was linked with a desire expressed here and in Bulgaria that the Bulgars and Yugoslavs join with Russia—mother of Slavs—for defense of the south Slav peoples of the Balkans.

Dutch Leaders Go to Berlin?

LONDON, May 9 (INS)—The London Star published a sensational report today that "certain prominent Dutchmen" have gone to Berlin "in connection with German demands."

Grounds exist for grave anxiety over the situation in Holland, the Star said.

There was confirmation of this report in other quarters.

69th Nazi Flier Shot Down in Britain

LONDON, May 9 (AP)—An enemy aircraft was reported shot down off the northeast coast of Scotland by Royal Air Force fighters, the air ministry announced today.

British tabulations listed it as the 69th German plane destroyed over or near Britain's coast since the war began.

DUCE SAYS ITALY TO STAY ON FENCE

ROME, May 9 (AP)—Premier Mussolini today told his Fascist followers celebrating Army and Empire Day that "only facts" would break his self-imposed silence on the European war.

Il Duce thus indicated clearly to his hearers massed under his Palazzo Venezia balcony that Italy's non-belligerency remained without change until some new development in Europe's conflict plunged this country into war.

While Mussolini was addressing his followers, Fascist authorities indicated Italy still is on the fence waiting the right moment to jump in and get what she wants in prestige and more living space.

ARMY UNDER ARMS

Associates of Mussolini emphasized that Italian preparedness for war did not mean necessarily that Italy was entering the conflict soon. "Our army is under arms, but nobody can or must draw arbitrary or dangerous deductions from this attitude," said the newspaper Il Messaggero. "Our arms are always ready to be shouldered at any moment interests of the country require."

Il Popolo di Roma indicated Italian interests eventually would require it, saying, "The idea of being able to preserve one's own peace with the most clever and Pilate-like conduct can be for the present non-belligerents a dangerous delusion."

None should delude themselves that any country which stays out of the war will be able to make its voice heard afterward as the Italians intend to do, the paper added.

CHAMBERLAIN BEATEN?

With Italy's course dependent chiefly on relations with Britain, Italians watched the fate of Chamberlain's government and expressed belief it was beaten in Parliament despite the fact it won a narrow majority.

"Chamberlain, engaged in impossible defense, thought himself justified in involving other persons and bodies, thus aggravating the general uneasiness," said Il Popolo di Roma. "Chamberlain also acted similarly to save him-

Author Suicide Under Train; Girl's Plea Vain

After a dramatic scene on the platform of the Swampscott railroad station in which a young woman employe of a Boston department store pleaded with him not to end his life, Hanson Hart Webster, 63-year-old Boston publishing house executive and widely-known author, hurled himself under the locomotive of a Boston & Maine express train today and was instantly killed.

HAPPY NEWLYWEDS

MR. AND MRS. LEO CURLEY
Secret Bridal Revealed, Couple Guests at Party

LEO CURLEY, BRIDE TO LIVE IN BOSTON

It was to escape the wedding fanfare which would have been his as son of a former governor that caused Leo D. Curley, son of ex-Gov. James M. Curley, to quietly slip away for the ceremony with his life-long sweetheart, Catherine Sweeney, Charlestown-born New Yorker.

Marriage of the couple in St. Mary's Church, Alexandria, Va., was revealed exclusively yesterday in the Boston Evening American.

"We planned to keep our marriage a surprise until after my exams at Boston University law school," young Curley explained today.

"But I guess someone must have stolen a march on us. Yes, we're going out to find an apartment and live right here in Boston. Catherine wants a place where she can cook—and, boy-o-boy, can she cook."

The elopement of Leo and his bride, who lived in Roxbury before going to New York, climaxed a long friendship which began when they first met as children at Nantasket Beach. She is a close friend of Mrs. Mary Curley Donnelly, who served as bridesmaid.

The service was performed by Rev. Robert Beattie, a friend of young Curley.

Former Gov. Curley expressed keen delight at the marriage of his son.

"I am very happy about the marriage," he said. "I believe in young marriage. Leo and Catherine have been sweethearts for years and she is a very lovely girl."

What's in Name? 10 Days in Jail!

OMAHA, Neb., May 9 (AP) Edgar Stevens, 37, has an answer to what's in a name—in his case ten days in jail.

Arraigned before Police Judge Palmer on vagrancy charges, Stevens explained that as kangaroo court judge in the county jail he was known as "Suspended Sentence Stevens."

"They call me 'Ten-day Palmer,'" the police judge observed passing sentence.

The girl's talk with Webster was carried on in quiet, intense tones unbeknown to 50 commuters waiting for a suburban train due to arrive a few minutes after the express.

The author's suicide before their very eyes threw them into confusion.

TALKED WITH GIRL

According to Police Chief Walter H. Rouse of Swampscott, Webster arrived at the depot from his home in Clifton st., Marblehead, as morning commuters were beginning to gather.

Webster probably took an early train from the Beach Bluffs station and got off at Swampscott, police said; though they admitted he might have ridden in an auto to the Swampscott station.

At any event, shortly before the North Shore express to Boston was due to arrive, Webster opened a conversation with Annette Mowatt of Burrows st., Swampscott, who was waiting with the others on the platform for the local which follows the express.

HER STORY OF TRAGEDY

"He was acting very strangely," Miss Mowatt told police, almost at the point of hysteria herself. "He told me he was going to kill himself and I pleaded with him not to."

"We were talking very quietly, but intensely, and no one seemed to notice us, but as the express came in sight roaring down the tracks, he ran to the edge of the station and hurled himself in front of it."

"I couldn't stop him, it was terrible! It was horrible!"

The waiting passengers were thrown into an uproar. Train service was held up for about 15 minutes.

A statewide teletype broadcast had been sent out earlier by Marblehead police, announcing that Webster had been reported missing.

"Mrs. Webster called us about

CLUE TO SLAYER SOUGHT IN DIARY OF SLAIN SAVANT

WESTFIELD, May 9—Detectives today combed carefully through the diary and papers of Prof. Lewia B. Allyn, noted chemist, in the hope that, somewhere, he may have made notations that would furnish a clue to his subsequent slaying.

Some enemy, with a bitter motive—whether real or fancied—was the killer who pumped four bullets into the scientist's body late on Tuesday night, the investigators believed.

And that the killer was known to Prof. Allyn and knew the house was embodied in a new theory that, after the shooting, he walked from the front vestibule through to the kitchen and left by the back door.

This theory would take him through the darkness to three avenues of escape, if he did not have car concealed away from the house.

One avenue would be the road from Westfield to Boston, another the road from Westfield to Springfield, and the third from Westfield to the main road to Albany, N. Y.

DIARY IS CHECKED

Detectives and state troopers are checking with bus drivers along these routes.

The very nature of Prof. Allyn's work, according to the investigators, was calculated to line up against him many enemies, including food racketeers whom he had exposed in the long years of his experience as a pure food expert.

Throughout his career, the professor kept diaries and preserved many records and documents, and somewhere in that mass of data authorities hoped there might be a notation that would give them a clue to the slayer.

Pursuing the same objective, detectives again questioned the widow, Mrs. Alice Allyn, and 17-year-old Anne Siroka, who for about a year has been employed in the Allyn home.

From the woman and the girl the investigators hoped to glean some fact or some incident, or some remark by the slain man, until now half-forgotten, that might give them a lead.

FUNERAL HELD TODAY

The Siroka girl arrived home from the movies with a boy friend between the time of the slaying and the arrival of police, summoned by Mrs. Allyn.

Skating Star to Wed

Skate Romance Is Revealed

A romance which began on the ice of the Boston Arena was revealed today through announcement of the engagement of Paul Vincent Brown, eldest son of the late George V. Brown, and Miss Margaret Simpson, pretty Canadian skating star and instructor.

The young couple met three years ago when Miss Simpson came to Boston from Banff, with her sister, Mary, to amaze Boston skating lovers with her brilliant performance in the first international skating ballet, "Gay Blades" at the Boston Garden.

At that time, Paul was a student at Boston University. When he became manager of the Boston Arena last year, he engaged this clever young skater as figure skating instructor.

Cape Cod Forests Closely Guarded In Wake of Sweeping $50,000 Fires

Cape Cod officials paused today to survey damage estimated at close to $50,000 in the wake of two of the most disastrous forest fires in the history of the peninsula, while state officials stepped in to eliminate further danger by banning all fires in the open.

The two fires occurred during a series of 11 blazes which raged for four days.

Last of the dwellings which fell prey to running flames was the home of Frank M. Ewer, on the edge of Triangle Pond in West Barnstable. The house was valued at $500.

As it to emphasize the need for extreme caution expressed by State Conservation Commissioner Raymond J. Kenney, what at first seemed like a trivial fire claimed a life in St. Albans, Vt. Fred J. Hollidge, 85, a farmer, had been burning grass about his barn, stepped inside and was trapped and burned to death when the barn took fire.

Kenney announced that anyone found lighting fires in the open will be prosecuted and called upon all law enforcement agencies to cooperate with him. The state has suspended all permits for outdoor fires. Bourne selectmen backed this up by posting a reward of $100 for the conviction of any person who sets a forest fire.

BLAMES BERRY PICKERS

Some of the fires growing into the three major conflagrations on the Cape which have burned over 35 square miles in the past three days, are believed to have been set. Maxwell C. Hutchins, state fire-warden, said the intention of the fire-setters was to improve the soil for blueberry growing.

A promise of rain today was welcome news to the firemen and hundreds of volunteers. The two major fires in the Mashpee and Marston Mills sections and in West Yarmouth were extinguished yesterday afternoon.

New fires broke out in Hatchville, a section of Falmouth, and in East Dennis, near the Brewster line, but they were out before nightfall.

All night patrols were maintained in various sections of the Cape and will remain on duty until rain removes all danger of fires being renewed.

INSISTS ON PAYING ALIMONY

CAMDEN, N. J., May 9 (INS)—

"I don't think that's enough" objected Francis H. King in Camden Chancery Court when Advisory Master William B. Knight awarded his wife $15 a week for maintenance of herself and two children.

"How's that?" asked Knight, incredulously.

"I don't see how she and the children could possibly get along on that," replied King, whose wife, Ruth, is seeking a divorce on grounds of cruelty. "I make $35 a week and would be glad to pay $20, and more when she needs it."

"There's a lot of good in him," sobbed Mrs. King. "If he'd only leave drink alone."

Refusing to change his original order, Knight suggested that King could make larger payments whenever he pleased and advised the couple to try and effect a reconciliation.

Judge Lane's Kin Get $9000

A daughter and two sons are left a total of $9000 by the will of Judge Patrick J. Lane, special justice of East Boston court, filing of the will for probate revealed today.

Judge Lane, who home was in Washington ave., Winthrop, died April 17. The daughter, Edna, is to receive $2000 cash and the income from a $3000 trust fund.

The two sons, Everett H. and Edward L. are to receive $2000 each and share the residue, if any, with their sister. Two daughters-in-law Anna and Sara, were left $100 each, as was a granddaughter, Sally.

Triplets of Prison Mother Win Hearts

As the body of the unwed girl mother who died that might live was taken to a funeral parlor in her home city of Everett, the boy triplets born to tragically unfortunate, 18-year-old Miss Margaret Meuse, were the darlings of Framingham Union Hospital today.

They weighed five pounds 15 ounces, six pounds three ounces and six pounds five ounces at birth, a near-record, doctors said, for a multiple delivery.

Today, the babies had not begun to gain weight, but the adoring nurses that hovered over them predicted they will soon be the huskiest, healthiest triplet boys in Massachusetts.

PLAN FOR FUNERAL

Meantime, scores of former school friends and business office associates of the girl mother planned to attend her funeral, set for 2 p. m., Saturday.

News of her death and of the fact that she had spent her last months as an inmate of the Women's Reformatory at Framingham came as a shock to the many who remembered her as a laughing, chestnut-haired, fun-loving "mama's baby" who could seldom attend even a high school party without parental chaperonage.

Mrs. Arline Meuse Dow, of Lynn st., Everett, grandmother of the triplets said:

"My daughter never went anywhere without me until she was 16 years old.

"She was a sophomore in Everett high school then. But she wanted to quit her studies and go to work, so her stepfather and I finally consented.

"She found a job in an office here in Everett and everybody associated with her there considered her a fine, quiet, ambitious type of girl.

"Her whole trouble was falling in love with the wrong sort of man. She was loyal to him to the last.

"Yet he never came forward. He let her die alone. I hope some day I'll see him get the punishment he deserves.

"My only comfort now is the hope I'll be allowed to take my Margaret's three little baby boys and bring them up as if they were my own.

WOULD ADOPT BOYS

"We don't know yet if the state will allow me to adopt them. The doctors say they'll have to stay at the Framingham hospital for at least six months.

"But they say, too, that they're wonderful, healthy boys. It's very unusual for triplets to be born other than prematurely, especially with so young a mother.

"It was terrible that Margaret had to go to the reformatory. Even the probation officer said that wasn't right. My daughter wasn't a bad girl. She was unfortunate.

"My only consolation is the knowledge Margaret got the best medical and surgical care any girl could have.

"That was really why they sent her to an institution. For her own protection. It wasn't possible for me to care for her properly at home."

2 of Lincoln Kin On Relief Rolls

NEW YORK, May 9 (INS)—Two distant relatives of Abraham Lincoln were discovered on the New York relief rolls today.

They were the Misses Nancy Lincoln, 41, and her sister, Tennessee, 42, whose grandfather was Jesse Lincoln, a first cousin to Abraham Lincoln.

POLICE DIG UP YARD OF 'BABY FARM'

CHICAGO, May 9 (INS)—Authorities today dug in the yard of an alleged "baby farm" which Mrs. Mae Smith and her daughter, Mary, are accused of operating for seven years.

The Smiths are held in jail, the mother in bond of $10,000 on a charge of operating a maternity home without a license and the daughter in bond of $500 on a charge of kidnapping.

They are said by investigators and by Judge Harry M. Fisher to have arranged for the care of unwed girls who were expectant mothers and then, when the babies were born, to have sold the infants to foster parents, in some cases without the formality of legal adoption.

The digging was authorized, according to police of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, after information had been received that the Smiths had arranged for the employment of physicians who previously had been convicted, or charged with, performing illegal operations.

The searchers for evidence included Coroner A. L. Brode and members of his staff and police from the office of Courtney. They arrived with shovels, picks and other tools, but announced after several hours' work, they had uncovered nothing of any special significance.

Adequate security for the rest of her life was the assurance recorded for Mrs. Mary Farley Oberle, 60, of Central st., Somerville, in Middlesex Probate Court today.

Her failure to break the will of her late sister, Miss Theresa Farley, Back Bay beautician with a society clientele, left the widowed welfare recipient with income from a $10,000 trust fund and an outright bequest of $1.

That she will be supported satisfactorily was promised the court by Mrs. Mary M. Keefe of Somerville, a friend who was left the bulk of the $27,000 estate. She was named administratrix of the trust fund.

Poison Perils Suspect's Life

While police were ready to prosecute him on charges of assaulting two small girls, physicians at Lynn Hospital today strove to save the life of Spiros Marakas, 54, of Summer st., Lynn.

Marakas was found unconscious in the back yard of his home after swallowing poison, according to police. He was taken to the hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list and his condition described as "fair."

A son, Peter, 21, and the father were recently charged with assaulting two girls, 8 and 9 years old. A court hearing was scheduled for tomorrow.

LOS ANGELES, May 3 (INS)—Describing his actress daughter as "Marion Goddard Levee," also known as movie actress Paulette Goddard, also known as the wife of Comedian Charles Chaplin, Joseph R. Levee of Beverly Hills filed suit in Superior Court to compel his daughter to pay him $150 weekly for his support.

Miss Goddard already is paying him $75 a week, but he stated he fears she will leave him without support. He formerly was a film salesman and earned an average of $150 a week, and his living expenses were adjusted to that income, Levee stated.

According to the complaint, Miss Goddard is scheduled to go on a South Sea Island trip with Chaplin and his two sons in June, and Levee stated he feared she would fail to support him at all while she is gone.

Mother's Day Founder Asks Armistice in War

PHILADELPHIA, May 9 (AP)—Miss Anna Jarvis, 61-year-old founder of Mother's Day, has suggested to the heads of Europe's warring nations that an "armistice" be observed Sunday as a tribute to "mothers living and dead."

She called her plea to King George of England, King Haakon of Norway, Premier Paul Reynaud of France and Fuehrer Adolf Hitler last night.

"It seems to me," Miss Jarvis said, "that Hitler, since he has asked German mothers to have big families and since his own mother is dead, might be the first man to honor such a sentiment."

One-Pound Baby Loses Life Fight

$75,000 Peabody Blaze Under Probe

Mystery surrounding a "rekindled" cellar fire in Peabody which spread through an entire business block and destroyed an adjoining Main st. apartment with damage of $75,000 was under probe today by city and state fire officials.

Meanwhile John McDonald, Peabody fireman, was recovering from smoke poisoning at Salem Hospital. Another fireman, Timothy J. Foley, who dropped through the floor of the apartment house at the height of the fire, was said to have suffered only minor burns. Five-year-old Marlene Kramer, of Lynn, a visitor at the same house, was carried to safety.

The lead in the investigation was the statement today by Fire Chief William C. Mahoney that apparatus first responded to an alarm from the business block and quickly extinguished flame they found in the basement. There was no sign of fire when the hose company left, he said, yet a new alarm was turned in three hours later. This time the flames had gained great headway and the Salem Fire Dept. came to assist as a general alarm was given.

Mrs. Dahl Sings For Supper as Hubby Writes

Into New England today comes plumed-haired Mrs. Edith Rogers Dahl, concert violin player and night club chanteuse, whose aviator husband held front page headlines last year when he was captured by the forces of General Francisco Franco in Spain.

At that time, Dahl's release was at least partly brought about by the intercession of this cool-eyed wife, who sent one of her best photographs to the general in a plea for mercy.

Now, as Dahl sits in a New York apartment finishing a book of his experiences that he hopes to have published and subsequently made into a movie, his good-looking wife is touring New England, playing one night stands.

Tonight she brings her violin and her singing voice into the Lyric Theater at Fitchburg, a week from tonight she will be in Lynn. She announced that she and her husband also are considering a flying concession at the World's Fair this summer.

Officers Assigned To Probe Delinquency

Patrolman Matthew T. Connolly, 29, who gave up his post as a school teacher last January to join the Boston Police Dept., realized his ambition today with his assignment to investigate delinquency in the Fields Corner Station district.

Keen interest in the problem of juvenile delinquency led Connolly, a college graduate, to give up his position as teacher and don a policeman's uniform.

Dead 2840 Years, He Flies to Fair

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9 (AP)—Mourning relatives of Harwa, who lived about 2840 years ago in Egypt, might well have been skeptical if someone had told them his remains would some day travel through the air across a continent.

The Field Museum in Chicago sent the mummy to the Golden Gate Exposition by mistake. After much telegraphing, Exposition officials agreed to dispatch Harwa by air to New York for the World's Fair, opening there Saturday.

10th District Vote Recount Under Way

Recount of Democratic votes cast for delegates in the presidential primary in the 10th Congressional District was begun today by the Boston Election Commission.

Early in the recount it was a foregone conclusion that the candidates who lost the least votes would win—as high as 50 per cent of the ballots being thrown out in some precincts because confused voters had marked them incorrectly.

In the primary, three out of four of the Farley delegates picked by the Democratic State Committee were returned as elected.

City Councillor Michael J. Ward of Allston, heading a rebel four-man Farley slate in the district, won the fourth berth.

Ward, however, filed for a recount, asserting that it would reveal his three "rebel" associates to have been elected also. The 10th district includes Wards

4 and 5, Back Bay; 9, 10 and 12, Roxbury; 11 and 19, Jamaica Plain, and 20, West Roxbury. Ward 21, Allston, the ward stronghold, is not being counted.

FD AIDES FIGHT FOR CAA PLAN

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP)—Administration lieutenants sought today to postpone a Senate vote on the proposed reorganization of the Civil Aeronautics Authority in the hope of strengthening their ranks.

The House disapproved the reorganization plan yesterday, 232 to 153, and Senate rejection would kill it. Senator McCarran (D.) of Nevada, leading the fight against the President's proposal, served notice that he would move for its immediate Senate consideration.

Democratic Leader Barkley and Sen. Byrnes (D.) of S. Carolina, working against McCarran, argued that the Senate reorganization committee should be permitted to complete hearings on the plan today and tomorrow.

WOULD ABOLISH BOARD

Byrnes said several Senators had advised him that they did not fully understand the President's plan, which would place the new independent CAA within the framework of the Commerce Department.

It also would abolish the present Air Safety Board and would shift the Weather Bureau from the Agriculture to the Commerce Department.

McCarran temporarily blocked Senate confirmation yesterday of J. Monroe Johnson's nomination to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

SILENT ON ACTION

The Nevada senator said he had nothing to say regarding his action, but it was recalled that Johnson once helped draft aviation policies when these were controlled by the commerce department.

In order to act on McCarran's motion to take up the reorganization plan, the Senate decided to lay aside temporarily legislation to stop treasury purchases of foreign silver. A vote on that measure may not be reached this week.

Sweep for Roosevelt Seen in Support

By CECIL B. DICKSON

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 9—The third term boom for President Roosevelt soared to new heights today following primaries in five states and new pledges of support received at the White House from North Carolina and Georgia Democratic leaders.

Backers of Vice-President Garner frankly conceded that President Roosevelt could have the third term nomination, if he wants it, and on the first ballot at the National Convention in Chicago.

The President's sweeping victory in California, where he defeated Garner for the powerful delegation of 41, definitely reconciled the Texan to the overwhelming demand that Mr. Roosevelt seek a third term.

Garner told intimate friends that Mr. Roosevelt could stampede the convention and that the demand for him was so great that the convention might nominate him even if he rejects a third term.

GARNER OR RAYBURN

Garner backers, however, plan to keep the Texas delegation of 46 pledged to the Vice-President, in the event that Mr. Roosevelt refuses the nomination.

As a last resort, they hope to make the 1940 ticket "Roosevelt and Garner" or "Roosevelt and Rayburn." Rep. Sam Rayburn (D.) of Texas is the House Democratic leader, and will head the Texas delegation to Chicago.

Garner backers stressed the possibility of the "Roosevelt-Garner" ticket, after it was learned that Mr. Roosevelt and the Vice-President held a friendly chat at the White House.

In a bantering exchange, Mr. Roosevelt invited Garner to travel with him on his projected June tour west and told the Vice-President he would like to visit the Texan for a few hours at his Uvalde home. No decision was reached, however, because the proposed trip will have to be abandoned if Congress remains in session until June 15.

WHEELER BACK

Sen. Wheeler (D.) of Montana, a candidate for the nomination if the President does not run, returned from a southeastern tour and said Mr. Roosevelt faces a third term draft movement even if he rejects the nomination. He expressed the belief, however, that Mr. Roosevelt would not be a candidate.

As third term boomers counted 104 additional delegates in the Roosevelt column as a result of the primaries, precinct voting in Oklahoma indicated that state would instruct its 22 delegates for a third term.

Another delegation, headed by Sen. Bailey (D.) of North Carolina, told the President that that state's 26 delegates were "in the bag."

Oldest Cat Dies; Had 173 Kittens

PHILADELPHIA, May 9 (AP)—Mother Cat Barney died yesterday in her 25th year—reputedly the oldest cat in the United States.

"She wasn't ill," said her owner, Miss Frances M. Barney. "She was just tired."

The white, yellow and black "mother cat" will be buried beside the grave of one of her 173 kittens.

She was 24 March 3, and seemed at that time likely to pass the record of longevity of "Tommy Clark," Seneca Falls, N. Y., veterinarian's cat who died last August at the age of 24 years and six months.

MURDER CLUE SOUGHT IN ALLYN DIARY

Had Anne and her friend arrived a few minutes earlier, to park where they did, in front of the Allyn house, they might have heard the death shots and would have seen the slayer fleeing—if he did not leave by the rear door.

As police probed deeper into the dead scientist's business relations, bereaved members of his family, prepared for the funeral scheduled to be held at 3:30 this afternoon at the Second Congregational Church, with the Rev. Roy G. Pavy officiating.

Meanwhile science played its part in seeking a solution to the baffling murder.

Dr. Alan Moritz, head of the State Police crime laboratory, announced, following an autopsy that four shots had been fired into the victim's body by the assailant he admitted to his home at 10:30 Tuesday night.

Dr. Moritz produced three clues in the form of bullets fired from a .22 calibre automatic pistol, which had lodged in the body.

In the absence of fingerprints, it was stated that ballistics identification of the murder bullets would be irrefutable evidence in court if the death weapon is found, as each gun makes its own individual markings on bullets which it fires.

These were turned over to Capt. Charles J. Van Amburgh, state police ballistics expert, who arrived here with Dr. Moritz and State Chemist Joseph A. Walker. Later the bullets recovered from the body of 66-year-old Prof. Allyn were also turned over to Capt. Van Amburgh, together with that which passed completely through the victim and was found on the floor.

It was through Capt. Van Amburgh's study of these bullets and the empty shells that the authorities hoped a clue to the identity of the murderer might eventually be obtained.

3 YOUTHS QUESTIONED

During the day three young men were brought to police headquarters and questioned at some length by State and local authorities, but were later released.

Police were making a check of

WESTFIELD HOME OF SLAIN PROFESSOR
Chemist Killed in Living Room (Arrow)

hardware stores in Westfield and nearby communities in an attempt to determine whether or not .22-caliber short cartridges had been sold recently.

It was further disclosed by Dist. Atty. Thomas F. Moriarty, that a struggle had taken place in the hall of the Allyn home, as evidenced by displaced and twisted rugs, and the shattered eyeglasses of the victim on the floor.

In this connection authorities laid considerable emphasis on the value of a statement made by Prof. Allyn's wife, as showing that the murderer apparently was admitted through the front door by her husband while she was upstairs reading.

Mrs. Allyn told police that from her upstairs bedroom a few moments before the fatal shots were fired she heard an unidentified man and her husband talking earnestly but in low tones, after having heard someone ascend the steps of the porch.

She said she did not hear the doorbell ring, but did hear the sound of voices in the hall, the conversation sounding as if both men were "making explanations."

WIFE HEARD SHOTS

Then came two shots and what sounded like scuffling, Mrs. Allyn said, and as she leaped up to investigate, "two or three more shots" followed, after which the silence was broken only by dragging footsteps, apparently passing from the hall to the dining room and the kitchen.

When the terror-stricken wife reached the first floor she found her husband slumped half out of a chair, with blood streaming down his chin, she said. He muttered, "call the police," but when officers arrived a few minutes later he was dead.

WAS READING HISTORY

Police, who began an immediate investigation of the mysterious crime which closely paralleled the unsolved murder of Hadmaster Elliott Speer in the library of his home at Mt. Hermon School, Northfield, Sept. 14, 1934, found a trail of blood leading from the hall to the kitchen and back again.

The book Allyn was reading prior to the shooting is titled "The Gun." It is an historical novel by C. F. Forrester based on the Napoleonic invasion of Spain. It deals with the effect of an old but efficient cannon on the private lives of the soldiers and their campaigns.

According to Dist-Atty. Moriarty, police discovered two guns in the house, both the property of Allyn and neither showing signs of having been fired recently.

One was a .22 caliber rifle, which police said was in a kitchen closet, and the other a .32 caliber revolver, found in a desk drawer. Both weapons were also turned over to Capt. Van Amburgh for examination.

Drink of Scotch Foils Death Leap

NEW YORK, May 9 (INS)—Lured by a drink of Scotch from a 16th floor window sill from which he threatened to leap, Harlan McIntosh, 32, a writer, was in Bellevue psychopathic ward today.

While police on the roof were preparing to drop anti-suicide nets, a cop inside the McIntosh apartment had an inspiration. He offered McIntosh a drink of his own Scotch.

That did the trick and McIntosh climbed back into the room.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of these gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste builds up in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your Druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Hitler Frees Norway Captives, Lashes Poles

BERLIN, May 9 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler issued an order today declaring: "I have decided to permit Norwegian soldiers who were taken prisoner to return home." Hitler's order was issued to Gen. Nicolaus von Falkenhorst as commander of the German expeditionary force in Norway.

The text follows:

"Contrary to the will of the German people and its government King Haakon of Norway and his cabinet urged war against Germany."

"In this struggle, the following facts could be determined: 'During the war in the east, German soldiers who had the misfortune to fall into Polish hands, wounded or unwounded, were maltreated in the cruelest manner by the Poles and were massacred to death.'

"In contradistinction, it must be stated concerning the Norwegian army that there was not a single case manifested of such shameful perversion in the conduct of war."

"The Norwegian soldier displayed all cowardly and unfair methods such as were the order of the day with the Poles. He fought openly and honestly, and treated, respected and cared for our wounded and prisoners in the best manner possible to him."

"I have therefore decided to permit Norwegian soldiers who were taken prisoner to return home."

"Professional (Norwegian) soldiers alone must be kept under

Chamberlain Suits Berlin

BERLIN, May 9 (AP)—Reaction to official German quarters to yesterday's scenes in the British Parliament may be summed up in the words of one authorized source: "May God give long life to Neville Chamberlain as Britain's prime minister!" As long as Chamberlain is at the helm of the British government, this source added, Germany has nothing to fear.

arrest until the former Norwegian government has withdrawn its appeal to fight against Germany or until officers and soldiers individually obligate themselves by solemn word of honor under no circumstances to participate in further cumulative action against Germany."

Holland Speeds Defense Work

AMSTERDAM, May 8 (INS)—While apprehension over a possible invasion seemed to be waning, the Netherlands government went forward today with precautionary safety measures against any eventuality.

Although the specific cause for the precautions still remained obscure, measures taken by the government included further arrests of suspicious characters and the closing of the Amsterdam airport to foreign planes—meaning German planes.

Hansa (German) planes are the only foreign commercial aircraft still flying to and from Amsterdam. In addition, the nation's civil air defense organization was brought under military control.

Britain Calls Men 19 to 36

LONDON, May 9 (INS)—In the presence of the privy council at Buckingham Palace, King George VI today signed a proclamation calling up for military service all males from 19 to 36 years old.

The measure, designed to increase Britain's fighting strength and vastly reinforce the armed forces, affects all who today have reached the age of 19 but are not yet 37.

It was estimated the proclamation will extend liability for service to more than 2,500,000 in the eight new age groups involved.

9 British Soldiers Steal Ship, Slip Norway Trap

LONDON, May 9 (INS)—Nine British soldiers—eight of them said to be sole survivors of a northern battalion—arrived in Britain today after stealing a 2000-ton steamer from a German-occupied Norwegian fjord.

The men sailed the vessel through German and British minefields, guided by a compass and assisted by two Norwegian naval officers.

It was stated the British battalion engaged 2000 Germans in the Otta district of Norway, suffering from aerial bombing and machine gun attacks in what was called a "terrible struggle."

At the end of the second day they received orders to disperse.

Twenty British soldiers began a three-day journey without food through snow-covered mountains and eight survivors reached the Norwegian fjord to find it occupied by Germans.

Two Norwegian naval lieutenants helped them steal a ship with the aid of six crew members.

Chamberlain Clings To Post; Foes Meet

ment. This would dissolve the cabinet and enable Chamberlain to start afresh, avoiding the task of personally dismissing ministers. Some saw indications that Chamberlain would invite the Labor opposition to join a coalition government.

The diplomatic correspondent of the authoritative Press Association said: "Even among many of those who voted against the government the general opinion now is that the Prime Minister will certainly not relinquish his office at this stage."

Only a short while before opposition began developing to adjournment of Commons for the holiday. In debate on a motion for adjournment until May 21, Clement Davies, an Independent, moved an amendment that Parliament reassemble May 14.

"It is not right at a time of crisis that the House should adjourn for 12 days," he said.

He withdrew his amendment, however, after the chief whip, Capt. Henry Margesson, repeated Chamberlain's assurance the House would be recalled before May 21 in event of an emergency.

The House of Lords already had adjourned to that date.

EXPECTED RESIGNATION

Speculation that Chamberlain would retain his office succeeded a feeling widely held earlier in the day that he was likely to resign at once.

Sources who had inclined to that view said the only alternative to immediate resignation was drastic reconstruction—and they did not believe it possible for him to achieve the latter.

It was said that conservatives like Alfred Duff Cooper, former first lord of the admiralty, and Leopold Amery, first lord of the admiralty in 1922-24, also would be unlikely to be willing to enter the Cabinet under Chamberlain.

Lord Halifax, foreign secretary, called at No. 10 Downing st. today to see the prime minister, who omitted his usual morning walk in St. James' park.

In this connection, one political source observed that in the event Lord Halifax accepted an invitation to head a new government, the constitutional problem of permitting a peer to sit in both the House of Lords and Commons likely would be overcome by an emergency resolution of both Houses.

HALIFAX OR CHURCHILL

Commenting on the governmental situation, the political correspondent of the well-informed Star said it was "generally expected" that Chamberlain would see the King, tell him he was unable to constitute his ministry and advise the King to ask Lord Halifax or Winston Churchill to form a new government.

The Star said it was "possible" Chamberlain would suggest that Major Attlee, as head of the next largest party (Labor), might be asked to form a cabinet, but added that it was "doubtful" that Attlee could succeed in the present state of the parties.

Tory backers of Chamberlain, shaken by the swing of public opinion against his war leadership and the narrowness of last night's vote of confidence, entreated him today to rebuild his cabinet quickly lest he be compelled to resign.

In political circles the belief was held today that Chamberlain would invite Socialists and Liberals to join in a coalition government.

Some observers thought the Socialists would agree to share in the government if Chamberlain threw overboard Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Samuel Hoare, air minister.

The Labor party is expected to consider the question of taking part in the government at its convention Monday.

Pugnacious Winston Churchill who gave a pledge of loyalty when he entered the cabinet last fall, was credited with giving the Chamberlain government from a worse showing by accepting "full responsibility" for the decision again attempting to force Trondheim fjord with British warships during the ill-starred allied campaign in central Norway.

Members of Parliament, whipped to fever pitch by the biting attack of Lloyd George, who demands Chamberlain quit, cooled slightly when Churchill told them solemnly that Germany's numerical superiority in airplanes caused the allied setback in Norway.

Churchill's oratory failed, however, to quell a storm of boos and shouts of "Resign!" which came from opposition stands when the 71-year-old Chamberlain, tired and pale, stalked from Commons.

Churchill himself drew the wrath of Labor members during an angry exchange in which he called a heckler a "skulker."

FAILS TO SATISFY

The explanation made by Churchill of the decision against a frontal naval move on Trondheim failed to satisfy Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, who charged on the first day of debate that the government, showing "shocking ineptitude" in the war, failed to make proper use of warships in the Norwegian campaign.

Sir Roger voted with 43 other Conservative members of Parliament against the government.

Churchill told the House that if the Trondheim naval attack had been made Sir Roger would have been chosen to lead it.

kan peninsula, a reminder of the pan-Slavic movement of the pre-World War era.

The disclosure of the forthcoming military talks in Moscow comes while a Yugoslav trade delegation is renewing commercial relations with Russia. The Yugoslavs had a three-hour interview with Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov there last night.

News of the military mission to Moscow had been kept a close secret in Yugoslavia while the nation rushed troops and guns to her Italian and German frontiers.

GET ALLIED PLEDGE

Allied envoys were reported to have assured Yugoslav leaders that British and French troops, planes and naval forces would be sent to the country's help in case Yugoslavia found it necessary to resist an axis attack.

BRITISH PRESS ASKS CHAMBERLAIN QUIT

LONDON, May 9 (INS)—British newspapers sent up their heaviest rhetorical shells today in a massed assault against Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain following his narrow escape from defeat in the House of Commons.

The London Daily Mail said the Chamberlain government "must" go and urged choice of David Lloyd George, World War prime minister, as Chamberlain's successor.

The News Chronicle commented: "The really significant thing revealed by the debate is that the Chamberlain government no longer commands the confidence of either Parliament or the country."

The Laborite Daily Herald said: "Parliament has dismissed the premier, morally and politically."

The Manchester Guardian, famed liberal organ, commented bitterly on the results of the House of Commons vote of confidence:

"The result of the debate goes forth to the world as an apparent victory for the government, when everybody knows it is nothing of the kind."

The Daily Telegraph and the Times of London also called for government changes.

Nazi Press in Warning On New Aggressions

BERLIN, May 9 (INS)—While the possibility of war's extension to new and vital parts of Europe receded temporarily today, the German press kept up its drumfire of warnings against new "aggressions" by the Allies.

All Berlin newspapers gave great prominence to yesterday's statement by British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax that Britain "decided to limit her losses in Norway in order to commence extensive operations elsewhere."

(Editor's note: The text of Halifax' remark was: "We decided to cut our losses in order to fight elsewhere.")

Reflecting the official attitude that Germany is ready to meet any new challenge, the newspaper Der Angriff said:

"Our iron birds are ready to dive with rock-like speed upon the British fleet and devastate it wherever it appears to menace neutral lands."

CHINESE CLAIM VICTORY

HONGKONG, May 9 (AP)—Japanese advance troops, pushing a new drive in northern Hupeh and southern Honan Provinces, have been intercepted and beaten back, the Chinese reported today, saying tanks and planes were being used by the Japanese campaigners.

GUN SQUAD FOR SPIES IN BRITAIN

LONDON, May 9 (INS)—Stringent measures against pro-German "fifth columnists" in Great Britain were announced in Commons today by Home Sec. Sir John Anderson.

Sir John said new regulations would include the death penalty in grave cases of espionage and sabotage.

He added the government was introducing four amendments to existing defense regulations "strengthening the hands of authorities to deal with any possible attempt by the enemy to undermine resistance to any attack upon this country."

The House of Commons formally gave first reading to the bill to "make further provision for trial and punishment of treachery."

Powers given to the government under the new regulations include internment of non-enemy aliens who ordinarily would be deported, but could not be deported owing to circumstances arising from the war.

Seven years imprisonment or a fine of 500 pounds sterling or both are stipulated for any person or organization publishing matter calculated to foment opposition.

self when he ended up by uncovering the admiralty."

During Mussolini's address sections of the crowd interrupted his words with shouts of "Tunisi!" and "Malta!"

(Tunisi is the capital of France's north African possession, Tunisia. Malta is Great Britain's island naval base off Sicily in the Mediterranean.)

An indication of what new developments could change Italy's attitude appeared in a warning to Yugoslavia against accepting British-French guarantees of protection which was sounded in the Bologna newspaper Resto del Carlino.

Mussolini's brief statement was drawn from him by the crowd under his balcony which kept calling, "The Mediterranean for us," and asking for a speech.

It Duce appeared three times on the balcony, smilingly shook his head and placed a finger on his lips, which formed the word "No." It was only at his fourth appearance that he spoke.

Nazis Say Planes Sink Transport

BERLIN, May 9 (AP)—The sinking of a 7000-ton allied troop transport in the Narvik region of northern Norway and destruction of an allied submarine in the Skagerrak, arm of the North sea, were reported by the German high command today as new victories for its air force.

The high command said the Nazi air force also had participated in fights in the Narvik region where the Allies are besieging a force of between 3000 and 4000 Germans landed when the German invasion began May 8.

Walsh Offers New Plan for Warships

EVENING AMERICAN, THURSDAY, MAY 9, 1940

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP)—A recommendation that the United States guarantee the permanency of the projected battle fleet expansion was advanced today by Chairman Walsh (Dem. Mass.) of the Senate naval committee.

As the committee neared action on a bill authorizing an 11 per cent increase in the sea forces, Walsh offered an amendment which would empower the navy to replace the contemplated new fighting ships when they become obsolete.

A long range proposal, it would enable the navy to keep the fleet from falling below authorized strength.

SENATE FIGHT LOOMS

The expansion program was expected to win quick committee approval, but the fear of further warship building already were priming their guns to fight it on the Senate floor.

Senator King (D.) of Utah, found ammunition in the British House of Commons debate on the Norwegian campaign. Information disclosed, he said, demonstrated the need for more aircraft and submarines instead of new battleships which he declared "are so vulnerable from the air and below the sea."

The 11 per cent expansion program now pending would authorize construction of 19 or more fighting units, plus auxiliary ships and additional aircraft.

LONG RANGE PLAN

Walsh explained that his "guarantee" amendment would assure the Navy of a permanent authorized combat strength of 1,724,480 tons, in addition to auxiliaries.

Walsh pointed out that his proposal would not become operative in the near future, because dreadnaughts being built or projected would be "under age" for 26 years. Other warships would not reach obsolescence before 16 years, and submarines have 13 years to become "over age."

Dr. A. A. Gelman of Syracuse, Woolcott's personal physician, said Woolcott would resume his journey by automobile tomorrow.

Death's Surprise

MARYVILLE, Mo., May 9 (AP)—Friends gathered at Earl Cook's home last night for a surprise party. Cook didn't show up.

The friends found him hanging in his barn loft. Coroner C. D. Hummel said Cook, 54, killed himself because of money troubles.

5 DEAD IN SCHOOL SHOOTING

LOS ANGELES, May 9 (AP)—Ruth B. Sturgeon, arts teacher, died today, the fifth victim of a wild shooting affray at South Pasadena High School.

Verlin Spencer, junior high school principal, remained in a serious condition from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

He is held on murder charges, authorities charging he rushed from one intended victim to another, firing his target pistol in anger over petty jealousies and frictions at the school.

Spencer has been able to tell authorities but little of why he suddenly went berserk Monday.

"I don't know—I can't remember," was his reply to most inquiries by police seeking to solve the sudden and dramatic shootings that shocked the community. From school associates, authorities said they learned Spencer was a victim of a recent breakdown and had accused certain co-workers of trying to "persecute" him.

HOW N. Y. WOMAN LOST 26 LBS. of FAT

Fat Girls — Here's a Tip!
NEW YORK—Special!

In 40 days Mrs. Helga Blauhl reduced 26 lbs. Took 4 inches off hips, 3 inches off bust and 7½ inches off waist. She writes: "I feel fine and look 10 yrs. younger."

How would you like to safely and harmlessly lose 15 pounds of fat in a few weeks? How would you like to lose your double chin and your bulging hips and stomach and along with it get the increase in energy and improvement in health which so often accompanies excess fat reduction?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh. Take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water first thing every morning to gently activate liver, bowels and kidneys. Cut down your caloric intake. Eat wisely and satisfyingly.

Then after 30 days, weigh yourself again and just see if you haven't lost pounds of ugly fat. Money back if not fully satisfied. Refuse imitations. Demand and get the genuine Kruschen made right here in the U. S. A. A jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle.

Thrift U. S. Security, Adams Tells Bankers

Charles Francis Adams, Boston bank president and former secretary of the navy, said today the huge total of savings deposits in America indicates the average citizen is reluctant to place sole dependence for his future upon government "social security."

"The thrifty people of this country," he said in an address before the convention of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, "have to their credit in savings deposits a sum of capital practically equal to the amount which all the business of the country must keep in banks."

"This capital constitutes one of the most heartening signs of the times. It means that the average citizen is not content to place sole dependence on promises of 'social security' brought about by governmental action."

"No matter how praiseworthy may be the motives behind such legislation, governmental supervision of individual welfare never can take the place of private initiative—the will to independence."

Adams pointed out that the total of savings in all banks in America was twenty-five billions of dollars, or a little less than half of all the bank deposits in the nation.

In another address James A. Emory, general counsel of the National Ass'n of Manufacturers, renewed criticism of the size of the national debt.

"The conclusion of the present fiscal year will see the federal government carrying a national debt of approximately 45 billions of dollars. Its annual interest charge is greater than either the cost of national government or the national debt at the beginning of the first World War," he said.

In 1933 the government took 22 per cent of the national income in taxes and spent 28 per cent for public purposes. Despite this colossal sum, we are urged to make many influential places to enlarge the debt and the deficit. By a reform of the vocabulary, the new semantics transforms debts into assets and deficits into investments."

Job To Do

The Helen Barnet Gring

War gave her birth and now war is going to give her another chance at life.

"Her" is a big four-masted schooner Helen Barnet Gring being fitted out at Boston Dry Dock Co. in Chelsea for the West Indian trade. Her sailing craft is dated 21 years ago at Camden, Me., and of just half dozen remaining of age war built fleet.

The Gring's history has been a sketchy one. The big wind-jammer was used in numerous trade runs, one of them too successful. Nineteen years ago the vessel was chartered to take a load of lumber to Lakenhead, England. In command was the Gring's present skipper, Capt. William F. Flanagan, 35-year-old Bath, Me., veteran.

The trip took nearly 40 days, due to some of the worst storms in the history of the North Atlantic.

Growing out of shipping in the present war has made practical the venture of the Gring's new owner, L. H. Daughterty of Portland, Me., a veteran of the schooner trade.

SENATOR THOMAS of Oklahoma, who as chairman of a Senate Appropriation Committee which handles all allotments of funds for our military establishment, tells the country these uncomfortable and INCREDIBLE truths in an exclusive interview with a Washington representative of the Hearst papers:

ENEMY PLANE DETECTOR
Senators Saw Only One

we see one of the machines for detecting the approach of airplanes from a distance."

We have 130,000,000 persons and thousands of miles of coast to defend—AND ONLY FOUR ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS!

Why are we undefended from the air in these threatening days?

Here is the answer in Commerce Department figures:

In the first quarter of this year we exported to Europe $66,816,208 worth of airplanes.

This was an INCREASE OF 225 PER CENT over our exports in the first quarter of 1939.

We are stripped of airplanes, anti-aircraft guns and enemy airplane detectors BECAUSE EUROPE IS GETTING THEM.

If we are ever suddenly threatened from the air, we shall be in the same stripped-naked, vulnerable condition we were in 1917, when we went to war like babes to a slaughter.

FROM WASHINGTON comes news that the House Judiciary Committee, reversing itself, has voted to give further consideration to the Hatch "Clean Politics" Bill, which has been passed by the Senate.

This is GOOD NEWS. Much better news than the recent secret vote of the Committee to "table" this highly important measure and thus to delay Congressional action on it.

The Hatch Bill would amend the existing Hatch Act—which forbids political activity by Federal employees—so as to include State employees who are paid in whole or in part with Federal funds.

It is designed to prevent such scandalous abuses as the misuse of WPA money for partisan politics which occurred in 1938.

Thousands, therefore, will fail to agree with Representative Hutton W. Sumners of Texas, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, who opposes the amendment on the ground it would impair States' rights and who asks:

"Whose business is it to tell the people of my State what they can do?"

As a matter of practical and ugly fact, WHICH THE SENATOR OUGHT TO FACE, nothing can be more destructive of States' rights and State sovereignty than the PREVAILING PRACTICE of granting or withholding or manipulating Federal bounties to coerce State and local governments and even to bribe their citizenship.

Consequently—and despite the views of Chairman Sumners—a vote against the Hatch Bill is necessarily a vote for Federal encroachment, as well as for corrupt politics financed out of the Federal Treasury.

BOSTON IS SAFER than it was a month ago or a week ago. Lanes for pedestrians are being painted at various street intersections. Lives that might otherwise have been lost may be spared.

Still, however, ARE WE DOING ALL WE CAN DO?

One does not have to walk or ride far to see crossings at which men, women and children risk death or injury every hour of the day and night.

Consequently it is both possible and probable that in the not too distant future some man, some woman or some baby will be struck down and killed in a street that contains no safety markings or any other protective device.

"WE HAVE PRACTICALLY NO ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS. With other members of the Senate Military Committee last Winter, I traveled 10,000 miles inspecting more than 100 Army stations and we saw ONLY FOUR anti-aircraft guns.

"Those four we saw at Los Angeles. These guns probably would do good work, provided they spotted enemy planes overhead. But I am satisfied a lot must be done to coordinate the signal corps with the operators of the anti-aircraft guns.

"Only at Puerto Rico did

Paul T. Gilbert.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -1- -1- MY DAY

NEW YORK CITY, May 9—One can not help but have an anxious feeling about Holland.

Hitler's claim that he is ready to "protect" Holland against the aggression of France and England, fills one with curious foreboding.

These "protections" so often seem to mean aggression under a veiled form. The difference between attack and protection seems hard to discover these days.

Tuesday evening, at our table, there was much talk of old wars and new wars, history already written and history in the writing.

When all is said and done, and statesmen discuss the future of the world the fact remains that the people fight these wars.

I WONDER that the time does not come, when young men facing each other with intent to kill, do not suddenly think of their homes and their loved ones, and realizing that those on the other side must have the same thoughts, throw away their weapons of murder.

They might insist that their public servants—the statesmen of the world—get together and, on a rational and peaceful basis, solve the problems for which wars are fought. Of course, this would take willingness to co-operate, but it should not be impossible to great minds who plan war.

DEPLORES WARS
Mrs. Roosevelt Hits "Protections"

I read in the morning newspapers that some of our "greatest minds" gathered together at the University of Rochester, told the college students that new frontiers (of economic achievement) would always exist, because they always had, and that the contention that everything had been discovered made no appeal to them.

I suppose that they might contend that wars would always exist because they always have. If we agree with the second idea, however, that there are always new things being discovered, then we must take heart and hope that statesmen will also discover new ways of solving the economic and national urges which today involve nations in war, and which should be as easily defeated by the elders of the nations as the internal troubles should be handled by the youth of nations.

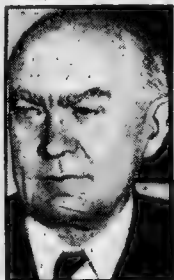

I wish I could have heard that whole Rochester symposium. What I read of it seemed to sound a note of confidence on the part of men who are the heads of great corporations, but it did not seem to touch the actual specific difficulties which face men seeking jobs in industries which seem to have disappeared.

I CATHER: that the main thing that youth must have is confidence. I have heard that said about business. "If business had confidence today, it would expand," but it trembles before the vagaries of government!

Perhaps that is the trouble with youth! It is equally fearful of a government which imposes limitations on what it may do for it, and of a business system which is constantly restricting jobs.

On the Side -1- -1-

MY MOTHER had given me a scrap book. As I was preparing to paste into it pictures of Christy Mathewson, Hans Wagner, Jim Hogan of Yale, "Rudy Bob" Fitzsimmons, Eva Tanguay, Fay Templeton and that good horse, Irish Lad, my mother handed me a faded magazine clipping saying, "Let this be the first thing you paste in your scrap book." The clipping read: "I shall know but one country. The ends I aim at shall be my country's, my God's and truth's. I was born an American; I live an American; I shall die an American—Daniel Webster." As I may have mentioned before my mother was a one thousand per cent American.

REP. SUMNERS

SPELLING A NAME wrong is considered an inexcusable editorial offense. However, I think an exception should have been made in the case of a man who lived in Dallas, Tex. His name was Wyxzezixward S. J. Chailoughicilizae . . . Says Leslie Howard, one of the six best actors in the world, shown conversing with little Ann Todd: "I am one of those unfortunate people to whom any kind of a public appearance is an embarrassment, and for whom to perform before my fellow-men is a misery." Strange, isn't it, so many successful men do not care for the activity in which they have succeeded.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT made two remarks that can, at

Despite Success, He Still Does Not Care for Acting

this time, stand all the repetition you can give them. 1. "There can be no 50-50 Americanism in this country. There is room here for only 100 per cent Americanism, only for those who are Americans and nothing else." 2. "When two poles are hoisted on the same pole, one is always hoisted undermost. The hyphenated American always hoists the American flag undermost."

MOST WOMEN keep cool in Summer; most men do not. The men wear coats. Last Summer I made up my mind to go coatless. Would have, too, but didn't know how to carry things usually carried in coat pockets. I promised my Uncle Al I would never carry a brief case. I could hardly carry a handbag. I might carry a knapsack, but I think of all the time I would waste explaining I wasn't going butterfly chasing! Guess I'll just buy one of those suits the planters wear in the tropics. By the way, what do you claim is the best Summer drink?

TWO THOUSAND high speed bombing planes can be built for the cost of one battleship. Think I'll put that in a telegram and send it to my Congressman . . . No man over 40 should play handball, 36 holes of golf in one day or go in for any strenuous exercises . . . In 1938 a New England hen, known as Lulu Belle, laid 341 eggs. And was named "Hen of the Year." Are 341 eggs in a year the American egg laying record?

Noel Coward, who has been assigned to Paris by His Majesty's Government, took an eight-year lease on an apartment in the Place Vendôme . . . Dixie Davis, now in New Orleans to testify in behalf of the Federal Government, tried to change his name legally to "Dare," but then withdrew his application.

BILLY ROSE, flushed with the triumphant premiere of his new show at the Diamond Horseshoe, brought Eleanor Holm to Lindy's. Billy saw Estelle Taylor and greeted her boarsely, because he has lost his voice . . . "What happened to your voice?" asked Estelle. "How'd you lose it?" . . . "He was trying to convince me," explained Miss Holm, "to work for less money."

GENERAL MOTORS was host at a reception for college seniors who will start their job hunting next month. A group of experts—Karl T. Compton, head of M. I. T., Hugh Johnson; Ernest M. Hopkins, head of Dartmouth, and Charles F. Kettering, the scientist-engineer who is vice-president of General Motors—agreed to answer all questions in an "Information Please" Quiz conducted by Clifton Fadiman . . . In response to one of the questions General Johnson declared: "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear." . . . Kettering assured him: "A good chemist can."

GARSON KANIN, young director, has become RKO's most important asset as a result of his new picture, "My Favorite Wife" . . . The title of Al Jolson's musical, written by Eddie Davis and Matt Brooks, will be "Keep Punching" . . . Tilly Losch, wife of the Earl of Carnarvon, is working in a munitions factory.

WHEN ROBERT ARDREY won the Sidney Howard Memorial Award presented by The Playwrights, he wrote a letter of acceptance, in which he mentioned nothing about the award, but discussed only Howard, and what the late playwright's friendship had meant to him and his work . . . Robert Sherwood replied in behalf of The Playwrights: "I'm the only one who didn't vote for you, but after reading your letter I want to take this opportunity of making the award unanimous."

DRAMATISTS GUILD: The musicians' union will crack back this week at the recent statements accusing backstage crews, musicians, etc., of being responsible for hurting the American Theater. Its release will accuse some of the best known producers in America.

ELEANOR HOLM

THE RAREST QUIRK of the recent weather—a perfect spring day—so heartened the citizenry that Boston's major nightclubs hardly had elbow-bending room for sale at the supper shows . . . Even the good weather and the celebrating throngs were not sufficient to produce a talkative mood in any of the several impresarios now involved in the mystery of Mrs. Edith Dahl . . . It is not—the mystery of Mrs. Edith Dahl—a particularly baffling one . . . Simply, it is this . . . If Mrs. Dahl is coming to Boston—when? . . . And if the "when" is answered—where?

THE FORTHRIGHT KITTY BRANDO relinquishes any claim she may have had to the local appearance of the luscious blonde who pled for her husband's life, when he was held by the Francos, and won her appeal . . . The lovely Kitty insisted that (direct quote) "All I know is what I read in the papers!" . . . And if that is not a really original observation, Mrs. Brando made up for her lack of novelty by releasing a bit of news . . . "No, I have not booked Mrs. Dahl," said Mlle. Brando . . . "But we have added Ethel Barrymore Colt as a special attraction for next week. Business is so wonderful!" . . . (Any of the several hundred customers who blazed a trail through the main salon of Kitty Brando's to reach the nether reaches of the establishment, where two facing bars make speedier flipping possible, will corroborate the last statement.)

SO THE SOLUTION TO "MRS. DAHL or No Mrs. Dahl" probably rests today with Jack Brown, the younger, of the Casa Manana . . . Jack had flown to the country by motor when your correspondent tried to reach him at midnight . . . The last official communique from the Brown atelier was Frenchly abrupt but stated: "Mrs. Edith Dahl (c.d. note: a description followed) will open Monday next."

AS FOR TOMMY MAREN of Dirty Moore's and the projected "The Beach-Combers," Mr. Maren did not answer a ring at the Warwick in New York . . . Monday next is the tentative premiere date of "The Beach-Combers" . . . Except that two orchestras, including a rumba unit, will play at the newest Maren project, information has been scanty . . . It is conceivable that Mrs. Dahl, wearing a grass skirt and gurgling words like aloha, will turn up there . . . The place, notwithstanding the absence of its proprietor, is a beehive at this writing . . . Extreme remodeling was necessary to convert a routine restaurant such as was "The Commons" into a cranny of the well-known South Seas . . . Nearly finished inside, this remodeling has advanced to the point outside where an artist has painted six-letters over an entrance resembling a but made of driftwood . . . The letters spell out into the legend "Saloon!"

THE TWO MICKEYS WHO ACT AS SPOKESMEN respectively of the Mayfair and the Coconut Grove, the Mickeys Alpert and Redstone, are cudgeling their skulls currently to think up notions which will prove alluring to a sumnerful of conventions . . . The Mickey of the Coconut Grove was delighted with that spot's first "amateur night" . . . A lad named Dennis Delaney (from Somerville,) and a pretty miss from South Boston who

PUBLIC TO DECIDE
FILM'S RELEASE

By Louella O. Parsons

Jeffrey Lynn

HOLLYWOOD, May 9.—Warners are in a quandary and they'd like to ask your advice . . . Mr. and Mrs. Public, "All This and Heaven, Too," previewed yesterday, runs twenty thousand feet in length—approximately 23 reels. Bette Davis and Charles Boyer and Jeffrey Lynn are so good that the Warner bosses hesitate about cutting a foot from Rachel Field's book. What to do is the question. "Gone With the Wind" has brought in fifty million dollars in United States box office receipts and "Rebecca" is trailing along and apt to equal this startling figure.

Miss Field's book has been followed just as carefully as "Gone With the Wind" and "Rebecca." The public who reads these novels insist on getting them intact. Now what Warners would like of you, dear public, is: Would you like "All This and Heaven, Too" roadshowed as "G. W. T. W." was, or would you like to see it in two parts—released a week apart? Let's have your opinion—and to Warners, please—this writer is still two weeks behind in answering mail.

ANN RUTHERFORD

her divorce from Willis Hunt is final they'll march to the altar: Noel Coward arrives next week to visit Cary Grant. Cary has already moved into the Norma Talmadge house, which he bought, and Randolph Scott has leased one of Bette Davis' beach houses.

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND was sent home yesterday with a heavy chest cold; Harry Holtz and Betty May Heath are still ailing; Ralph Murphy and Gloria Dickson doing the night shifts. She has put on pounds and will have to watch her weight; Madeleine Carroll is trying to persuade Paramount to let her sail for France, but so far no luck.

DOROTHY LAMOUR, who had Honolulu in such a dither, docked in San Francisco yesterday and later left by automobile for Hollywood; Constance Bennett is a flu sufferer; Robert Paige, who kept little Margaret Roach's telephone so busy a few months ago, is romancing with Betty Hutton, a pretty Paramount secretary; Ann Rutherford and Rita Johnson go East for the premiere of "Tom Edison the Man" at Orange, New Jersey; Ann Sheridan and John Conte, Carole Landis, Willis Hunt, Lana Turner, Artie Shaw and Cesar Romero are among those who have booked reservations for Virginia Johnson's dance concert tonight; a fan stole Harpo Marx's red wig and one had to be pinned to him from Los Angeles.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

HE WAS NEW on the beat, and I thought he was the handsomest officer on the force. From the front porch I could see him on the street looking strong and handsome in his uniform. I developed a sudden passion for the flowers on the porch and spent long, solicitous hours caring for them in full view of the street below.

Then one day I had a brilliant idea. I waited until 9 o'clock when I knew he would come around the corner and pass below my window. Then throwing open the window I called, "Oh, officer, officer. I'm locked in. The key won't open the door."

HE CALLED UP, "Throw down the key and I'll open it for you." He caught the key and disappeared within the door. I heard him come along the hall and a minute later he was standing in the open doorway.

"Why it opened right away," he said. "Oh, did it?" I asked surprised. "I had an awful time trying to open it." "Well, it's all right now," he said. "Yes, I guess it is," I answered weakly, and then he was gone.

At least he knew me now and greeted me every day. I began to put so much fervor into my "Good morning" that I suspected he began to look at me queerly, but I was desperate. Sitting in the dark one evening, I even thought of trying to get run over. Suddenly a knock came at the door and there he was big as life.

"HELLO," he said, smiling down at me. "It's a lovely night."

I just managed to nod weakly. Then he asked intently, "How would you like to go to the Policeman's Ball?"

My heart somersaulted and I had visions of myself parading down the hall on his arm, to be proclaimed Queen of the Ball.

"Oh, I'd love it," I breathed. "That's fine," he smiled. "The tickets are just two dollars."

Can you write a story as entertaining as this? Send it to Two-Minute Story Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston. The writer of the best story of the week receives five dollars.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

I WISH PEOPLE—all these people who go ga-ga on Mother's Day . . . Could know Mothers as they really are. Not as you read about 'em in some sentimental poem.

There is probably more tripe written about Mothers and Mother Love than about any other subject on earth . . . and more Cain raised in consequence.

First off, we assume that all females who give birth are Good Mothers. Which is plain bunk. The mere fact of giving birth is no spiritual phenomenon . . . and wins no heavenly halo. Any rabbit can give birth—then frolic off to the next cabbage. And large numbers of human mothers follow the same procedure . . . and are equally unreliable as guardians for their young.

It takes more—plenty more!—than the act of reproduction, to qualify as a Great Mother.

I SMILE a little wryly at all these fulsome tributes to a love which we take so for granted. But no good Mother dares to take her love for granted—even for an hour. She knows—how well she knows!—that she faces a daily battle to lift—and give—that love above her own selfish desire.

She also knows—with what inner consternation—how easily love can flicker and fade before weariness, boredom and honest irritation.

According to popular belief, Real Mothers just happen. Like spring mushrooms. And Mother Love descends upon you—like lightning, or a dose of vitamins—at the first sound of your baby's voice.

Nothing could be further from the truth. True Motherhood is not spontaneous combustion but deliberate achievement. Mothers don't "get that way" in one glorious flash. They earn their crowns by slow and painful struggle and sacrifice.

HOW DO I KNOW these things? Because I, too, am a mother. Once, long ago, my arms held a tiny, wailing burden . . . and I'd give all I have left of life or love if he could come back to fill their emptiness again . . . And yet I know that love was not born in that moment.

I learned it on my knees . . . at the foot of a Cross.

LOEW'S 'TOO MANY HUSBANDS' PROVES GRAND COMEDY

23

Jean Arthur In Merry Role

By PEGGY DOYLE

Deliciously delightful is the dilemma Jean Arthur finds herself in in "Too Many Husbands," romantic comedy now unreeeling on State and Orpheum screens. Jean must decide between two husbands, Melvyn Douglas and Fred MacMurray, both handsome, desirable and ready to do handsprings if it will deflect her decision in their favor.

Claude Binyon adapted the screen story from W. Somerset Maugham's stage success and Wesley Ruggles directed, a combination that may be counted on to earmark the maddest kind of screen comedy.

CRAZY ANTICS

Mad this one is as a hatter and silly as "allegotout," but it will have you laughing, nevertheless, from start to finish. And smooth as is the direction and smart the script, it is the crazy antics and the charm of the three stars which puts the Columbia picture in the hit class.

Miss Arthur in a pretty pickle is such a persuasive wixen, she is exasperating and lovable at the same instant, and the two husbands are hard put whether to spank or kiss her.

It's like this: MacMurray, her adventure-loving first husband who has been legally declared drowned at sea, shows up alive and yearning for his little chickadee only to discover she has married his business partner—and best friend. When MacMurray comes out of his daze, Douglas snugly volunteers to drive him to his hotel. But he's a touch too eager and Fred throws out the disturbing suggestion that Jean seems still to be rather fond of him, her first husband.

STARS SCORE

There is no peace for either from then on. For Jean, it is all too, too divine. She was never happier, and to her distracted father's urging that she once and for all make up her mind between her two husbands she airily retorts that she's not going to be hasty. So she goes on to her boudoir to decide and the more she thinks the more she finds she is in love with BOTH of them.

It's all done with a light touch and made for laughs. Miss Arthur is one of our most expert comedienne and she couldn't have had two more charming husbands than Douglas and MacMurray if she had chosen them herself.

NEW "KILDARE" FILM

The second feature, "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case," is another chapter in the professional life of that adventurous young medical man, Dr. Kildare. It is a little long on insulin tricks and considerably short on entertainment value. There is nothing, however, the matter with the performance of that old reliable, Lionel Barrymore, and his young assistant, Lew Ayres; the latter's sweetheart, Laraine Day, and lesser members of the cast.

MARTHA SCOTT and William Holden are sweethearts in this scene from "Our Town," which will have its world premiere at Loew's State and Orpheum on May 23.

History of War At Trans-Lux

"Dances Out in Europe" which depicts the history of the transatlantic cable, is the first of a series of historical pictures to be shown at Trans-Lux.

Herbert Kline

James Hilton has written a commentary for the picture, which is shown by Fredric March. Herbert Kline directed "Second Trans-Lux" scene, feature is "Girl of the Streets."

Lingerie Goes Flowery

By ANNICE BRINK

THOUGH it's natural for spring to be a flowery season . . . it never before sprinkled its bloom through so many departments in the shops . . . the latest to succumb to the flowery wave is the lingerie section!

Wallpaper pattern flowers, natural field flowers, large bouquets . . . extremely striking prints take the place of the modest little nosegays that used to decorate nightgowns and robe sets. And best looking are those whose vividness is contrasted by the clear white backgrounds.

Not so very long ago, print robes matching print crepe nightgowns, could be found only in the swankier trousseau houses. Now you can get them for surprisingly little money, and they have all the charm of the costly ensembles.

There is one neat and nifty pair . . . a coat-type robe on Empire lines with the high bodice line, smooth skirt with no little flare it's almost straight, V-neck, extended shoulders and a above-the-elbow sleeves . . . and a nightgown following the same lines that has all the worthy, stunning design of a trousseau model.

You'll see more and more beading . . . pale blue ribbons about an inch wide, drawn through lace . . . perhaps in a square yoke on a nightgown with a high neck . . . or edging the almost non-existent legs of diminutive white crepe pants.

Mother's Day Menu for You

By MARTHA LEE

Mother's Day this year will be Sunday, May 12. Our idea of celebrating it goes much further than presenting mother with a pretty plant or a box of her favorite candy on this special Sunday in May. We do these by all means, too. But we'd like to make it a real day of pleasure and relaxation for mother when she'll be relieved of getting meals and all her usual household tasks.

We think the high school and college young people should take over the complete charge of the meals for that day.

We suggest the following menu for Sunday dinner that will require a minimum of effort but will still have a festive appearance. And we want to top off the dinner with a delicate white cake with a "party" air—which, of course, can be made the day before and presented to mother for the special occasion.

The pineapple parfait cake for which we are giving the recipe to-day, and which is also pictured here, is made with triple creamed shortening. It makes delicate cakes that stay moist and tender for some time. This pineapple parfait cake has a tempting fruity flavor and is topped with a fluffy snowy white frosting.

roast and potatoes are and place a spoonful of green mint jelly in the center of each one. Serve one broiled pear or peach with each helping of the meat and vegetables.

ROAST LEG OF LAMB

Place leg of lamb in roasting pan with skin side down and the cut surface up. Sear in a very hot oven (500 deg. F.) for 20 minutes. Then reduce the heat to 300 deg. F., slow moderate oven to finish roasting. (Allow 35 minutes for each pound in addition to the period for browing roast.)

PINEAPPLE PARFAIT CAKE

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup triple-creamed shortening
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. grated lemon rind
1 egg yolk
1 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups sugar
3 tsp. baking powder
3 cups sifted flour
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup canned pineapple juice
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water
4 egg whites

Combine shortening, salt, lemon rind and egg yolk and blend. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Add baking powder to flour and sift three times. Add small amount of flour to creamed mixture, alternately with combined pineapple juice and water, mixing after each addition until smooth. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold carefully into mixture until well blended. Pour batter into two deep nine-inch layer pans greased with "pan-coat." Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 25 to 30 minutes.

PINEAPPLE PARFAIT FROSTING

2 eggs whites, unbeaten
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cups sugar
5 tbsp. pineapple juice
 $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. cream of tartar or 1 tsp. light corn syrup
1-3 tsp. grated lemon rind
Put egg whites, sugar, pineapple juice and cream of tartar (or corn syrup) in top of double boiler and mix thoroughly. Place over rapidly boiling water and beat constantly with rotary egg beater until mixture will hold a peak (about 7 minutes). Remove from fire, add lemon rind, and beat until cool and thick enough to spread. Makes enough frosting for tops and sides of two 9-inch layers.

You Can Be Beautiful

New Wistaria Cologne Is Sentimental Scent

By ARLINE GOULD

WHEN your favorite winter perfume leaves you cold... when it seems you must bestow on yourself the flattery of an all-flower bonnet or a shoulder ruche of lace that frames your face like spun sugar... it's a surer sign of spring than tulips and magnolia trees a-bloom... and you must have a flowery perfume to climax your feminine appeal!

But this spring there's much that's wonderfully brand new in your life... and you're in the mood for a flower fragrance that is not everyone's aura... be the first one, then, to own an absolutely new "Wistaria" fragrance, in a concentrated floral cologne!

It's just being introduced to New York, with much oh-ing and ah-ing... and during its first few days in Boston, you will find the dollar size of it fitted with a cute little silk-tube atomizer just as a debut special! You'll always be able to get it at a dollar, but the atomizer won't be included later.

Marvelous as a Mother's Day gift idea!

We think that when a liquid fragrance is broken into thousands of minute atoms its subtlety and allure are just about doubled... It seems to blend exquisitely with your hair and your skin and your clothes... to become a part of you! That's why the special atomizer bottle is worth nabbing instantly!

This fragrance is appealingly tender and nostalgic, true to that of the graceful blossom itself... and it has a young, modest flair that's all in keeping with the purely feminine fashion scene.

If you'd like to learn all about this new wistaria concentrated floral cologne... which for a short time, as an introduction, will have an atomizer-gadget included in the $1 bottle, phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, week-days, except Saturday, until 5:30, or write, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Love

Does He Really Love Her?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The young man I've been going with for the past year has told me that he loves me, but he never mentions marriage. At present he is not employed, but he could at least say something about the future, when things would be better for him. He has often said that he would never marry until he is able to take care of a wife. But I think I ought to be considered in the matter.

I have a very good position and would be able to keep on after we marry. If he would only say a word about marriage in the future I should be content and would feel like saving for the future. Other men don't seem to interest me at all. And wondering as I do makes me feel miserable.

The modern young woman does not accept her fate in this patient manner, and the days when love affairs drifted for years are happily past. I see no harm in intimating to this young man that some suggestion as to the future would be only fair to you both.

BLONDIE

I THINK it was last Feb. 10—some time around then—shortly afterwards everyone knew about it. At any rate, it was just a bit after breakfast, and I was finishing up the paper, when the door bell rang, and Frances Blake came in without waiting to be announced.

I saw at once that something was up. You know those large reddish-brown eyes of hers that always look as if some one had just slapped her. Well, today they were quite obviously swollen and bleary with weeping; so was her nose—not enough powder on it as usual, and what there was was congealing in little dabs. She had on one of those hats with a deep crown, the kind that no one but Frances wore any more. It was all sliding off center with wisps of foiled auburn hair sticking out. She sat in my most comfortable chair by the fireplace, looking as though she'd fall off any moment.

"Forgive me for calling at this unearthly hour," she said in her time-honored, finishing school manner. I went over and helped her off with her coat. "I'm charmed," I said in my most cheerful after-breakfast tenor, "with this unconventional, but quite of propriety, but something tells me I can't put it all down to my personal luck."

"Don't joke, Fred," Frances had a queer dazed look. "The fact is—Pat's gone away."

I was pretty well knocked cold. You see, I had been one of the few believers that things were going to be all right with these two. I had an unreasonable confidence in Pat's fundamental character. And I'm fond of Frances—very. You probably couldn't understand it, I suppose, but she had an old fashioned, comfortable kindness that makes you forget how you are sweating over the conversation and would like to kick her for having her hair parted so blatantly crooked. . . . Well, I AM very fond of her, so much so that I was left pretty helpless from the shock of hearing this. I said all the banal soothing things that I knew she wanted to hear, and tried, incidentally, to find out just how it had happened.

"GOOD-BY FOREVER"

But from her story, it had been a thunderclap without antecedents or cause. Nothing unusual had happened in the past week, and last evening, THE last evening had been completely serene. They had had company to dinner and a filet mignon. Pat had remarked on how good it was. They had played bridge afterward without any extraordinary friction. Pat had been a little wild in his bids—but he always was. When the people left he had come out for a stroll—he often liked a breath of air before turning in. Only, this time—she was pretty well gone emotionally when she got to this point—he hadn't come back. There was a note.

Frances showed it to me and began to cry outright. It simply said something about leaving and saying goodby forever.

I sat there perfectly helpless watching Frances sob and sniffle like a whipped child with no idea what to do. Finally, I promised to see him and try to straighten things out. Then I had to make a dash for the office. It was pretty late, and there wasn't any use sitting there watching her face take on increasing shades of burnt orange.

I worried about the thing pretty steadily all week and spent all my spare time with Frances, although it was rather devastating. The house was like a mausoleum with the children shut off in their playroom, and the cooking even not up to the mark. But our hands were pretty well tied; Pat hadn't left any address and we didn't like to think of the police and such methods.

Besides, Frances didn't seem at all anxious that anything should be done. A blight had settled on her. She was the most bedraggled thing imaginable during those first few days, with her hair pulled back from her ears, as though she had just come out of a bath. She used to sit hours staring blankly at nothing. I think it was mainly the inactivity that was killing her. She was always the most remarkably busy person, forever attending to things for somebody, particularly Pat.

His picture was still standing on the parlor grand next to the large Venetian glass vase. It roiled me horribly to see that smooth smile of his unchanged and confident. And the wistful brooding eyes that made people sympathize with him and tend him as his wife had done for five years. It drove me almost mad to think of the pity that had been lavished on him by comely females, because he had married Frances and gotten a comfortable, stable background, with sufficient funds for his temperamental soul, as though she had cheated him out of something.

"A FREE MAN"

And here was the poor woman sunk and lost without him. Not a thing could be done, either.

Things went on like this for some weeks. Of course, people in town knew pretty soon, but Frances didn't seem to care much. I was there during a few of the condolence calls that she had to submit to, and she was pretty darned dignified, even though her soul was on the pilory.

It must have been fully a month, before I had any news of Pat. I met him quite by chance. He was standing at Tony's bar. He didn't seem any too pleased when I tapped him on the shoulder and said, "Hello."

We talked with considerable effort, he acting too gay and jovial for words, and I necessarily feeling like a secret service agent. I couldn't get anything very definite out of him except that he had a studio somewhere and was sculpting. Apparently, this was what nature had planned for him from the first. The two years of medical school, the year at Harvard law and the few months of journalism and all the rest had all been preparations for this life work.

"I'm a free man," he said several times, as though he had memorized a piece. He seemed to be dressing the part in a black felt hat and the customary flowing tie. He'd developed a sort of Francois Villon laugh-reckless, you know, and devilishly happy.

After about ten minutes his crowd came along. He rather pointedly didn't introduce them and made a quick get away, sneaked off, rather. They weren't the sort of people you'd expect Pat Blake to hang out with—a pretty shoddy lot.

I didn't tell Frances I'd seen him. What was the use? She seemed to be holding up her head a bit more by this time. The general attitude towards him got back to normal pretty quickly. She never really became a Madame Butterfly, even though everyone knew she was hard hit. There was something essentially dignified about her I've always thought.

Quite a while later, one rainy April night, Pat dropped into my room. At first, I thought it was merely a temperamental scorn of umbrellas that made him look so bedraggled. But after a while, I noticed that he was actually sloppy Buttons off and a shirt collar that was simply dirty.

I acted as casual as possible, but he was horribly ill at ease. I was groping for a civilized way to slip him a check. He wouldn't give me an opening, but sat there in a sulen wet lump. I wondered why he'd come and offered him a highball.

He drank it without a word, leaning against the arm of a chair with his back to me.

"It's a funny thing," he said in a kid's voice, starting out over the shiny black roof tops under the window.

"What is?" I asked.

"Everything is too darned funny I can't stand it any more." He had slipped back into the chair, arms around his knees, humped and dejected.

"I suppose you couldn't be expected to," he went on, "but I'd give my life to go back to her. I believe I need her."

"Financially," I interjected, cruelly perhaps, but it irritated me to see the man sitting there acting pathetic, and—hang it! actually being pathetic.

PAT EXPLAINS

"No," he said very definitely and dispassionately, "spiritually. And when you need anyone as I need her, I guess you might call it love."

"I suppose you're curious about the whole business—I can't tell you a very illuminating story. It's all so utterly futile. You see, I can't go back now, no matter how much I want to."

"It's hard to explain how it started, and why I left her. It was so long stand on the table and shriek, I happy, you dots, perfectly happy you'd only leave me alone." It was perfectly true. I think you're of the few people who ever appreciated what there was in Frances that made her a haven of strength and comfort to grown-up, lost children like me.

"That's all it was, Fred, I saw it. Just insinuation and suggestion, until I began to feel that must be some kind of spiritual mist to be contented with his shoulder."

"That last evening—it had been just about the same as always. I had no idea of leaving her when I went out for that walk. It was a fine, dashing sort of night, with the wind chasing clouds over the sky in a reckless kind of way."

"Be a man for once," I said to myself, "a free man." So I did it. I sent a note back and went to hotel."

It all seemed plausible to me and hopeful. I put my hand on his shoulder.

"Pat," I said, "go back now to you see the light."

I could feel his back stiffen. "I told you I can't go back," he got up and took his hat. "If you must know I've got a girl, divine fair except at 4 a. m. when she usually had too many drinks. We're not married, naturally."

Free as air, only she won't let me leave her. Seems to need me, G. knows why—but I can't be a coward in the same way."

"So long! Thanks for the drink. You might drop in some time if

INDIANS' BOSS BLASTS RED SOX

LOU FINNEY BIRDIE TEBBETTS JOE RUE
LOU GOES DOWN AND OUT—Lou Finney, Red Sox outfielder, flies for the plate in the sixth. But his try is vain, as Catcher Birdie Tebbetts takes throw and makes putout. Umpire Joe Rue stands ready to call it. Sox won, 5 to 4, to make their first place margin a game and a half over the Indians and two games over the Tigers.

Overwork Costly to Pitcher Bagby; Relief Hurling Best Bet for Grove

By BILL GRIMES

Three weeks ago last Tuesday, Lefty Grove shut out the Nats in Washington in the opening game of the American League season. The following day, Jim Bagby also blanked the Harrismen.

But, although they have each started three games since that series in the capital city, neither Grove nor Bagby has been able to go the route for the Red Sox.

Grove was forced to retire after six innings against the Washington on that very cold Tuesday, April 24, but the Sox were leading 5 to 5 when he went out and the defeat was charged against Herbie Hash, who was nicked for three hits and four runs in the eighth round.

Eight days later, Lefty lost his effectiveness after pitching four innings against the White Sox and with the score 8 to 4 in favor of the Red Sox was again relieved by Hash, who, because he pitched five innings, was credited with the victory.

HASH SAVES VICTORY

And, then, last Tuesday, again Grove wakened and again Herbie Hash went to his rescue. The In-WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP)—(Clark Griffith—the man who perennially pook-pooks the Yankees—came out today with advice not to take the world champions' present plight too seriously.

"They may have a few aching bones," said the Senators' head, "but they've got some mighty strong ones that don't ache."

diads touched Lefty for two singles and two circuit clouts for three runs in the eighth inning, leaving

Hash only a one run margin to work on but the rookie protected the slight advantage and the credit for the win went to the veteran southpaw.

Jim Bagby was knocked out of the Sox by the Athletics in Philadelphia on the last trip but Jim Tabor came through with a homer in the 12th and all was forgiven.

But on Bagby's next start the St. Louis Browns took a very decided liking to his offerings and Jim lasted only 6 1/2 innings, during which he yielded a dozen hits, and was charged with the defeat.

Jim made his fourth start yesterday and for the third straight time he was under the showers before the game was over but Jack Lucky to Beat Us, Vitt Says in N. Y.

NEW YORK, May 9 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians are not quite ready to claim the American League flag, but they are dead certain of one thing—that it will take more than the Red Sox to keep them out of the World Series.

"If those guys are all we've got to beat I'll quit worrying right now," said Manager Oscar Vitt as he brought his tribe here for its first go-round of the season with the Yankees. "They haven't got any pitching."

CHARGES SOX LUCKY

How, then, did Oscar account for the fact that the Sox knocked the Indians off twice up in Boston and took over the league top?

"Just plain luck," he insisted. "We didn't happen to get very good pitching, either, and they knocked a lot of scratch hits. But we've got a better club. My boys have been on the road practically ever since the season opened. Wait until we have that first long home stand."

Oscar is inclined to be more cautious about the Yankees, even though they are stumbled around the bottom of the standing.

"Don't ask me to say anything foolish about those guys," he pleaded. "But whatever's wrong with them I hope it's something serious. If I was 32 games ahead of them and only 23 games to go I guess I still would be a little nervous."

SAY LEFTY ON WAY OUT

Oscar and his players all say that great old Lefty Grove of the Red Sox finally has lost the last of his speed and that he will be lucky to win a half-dozen games.

"His fast ball comes up there big as a pumpkin," declared one of the group.

The Indians, on the other hand, expect to get better pitching right along. Mel Harder, always a slow man to get his arm in shape, is about ready to take his regular turn along with Bobby Feller. So, they think, is Johnny Allen. Those three, when going right, give the Indians a wicked pitching staff.

"You'll remember that we had pitching and hitting year before last, when we got away to such a great start and then fell apart down the stretch," said Vitt. "That happened because we had

Stengel Tempers Fate, Sends Lefty Sullivan Against Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, May 9—If cold records can be taken as fact, the Bees are the surprise package of Major League baseball today.

By knocking Paul Derringer from the hill to win their fourth straight and break a six-game winning streak of the Reds, the Bees have now won five out of seven games on this western trip—a figure even greater than the Dodgers who have won three and lost two.

Hopelessly in the cellar a week ago, the Bees are in the first division today only one game away from the Cubs who are in third place.

KIDS COME THROUGH

Kids like Chet Ross, Elmer Rowell and others like Les Scarcella, Al Lopez and Bill Ponder are getting plenty of credit but it is time that Casey Stengel was given a huge nod.

Experts told him he was daffy to keep Ross and Rowell. "The belief was that they were a year or two away—Stengel gambled, and with great success to date, for Ross is clubbing for a mere .382 and Rowell is hitting for a creditable .333.

Scarcella looked hopeless this spring and Stengel refused to give up on him—Les is paying off with base hits.

Stengel knew that he could not depend on his pitchers this year and devoted long and tedious hours to nothing but batting drills—his methods have hit the jackpot for the Bees are leading both leagues in hitting.

HAIL TO STENDEL

Yes, it's really time to pay tribute to Stengel.

Here in Cincinnati the Rhinelanders have now developed a wholesome respect for the Bees.

The Reds fans did not get excited over the Swain when they split with the Cards, for the Red Birds have shown nothing, and even the three straight triumphs of the Bees over the Pirates did not bother the McKeechmen.

But when the Bees teed off on Paul Derringer for four runs in the first inning—the comment was "These Bees must have something."

MILLER STILL ON RAMPAGE

Eddie Miller, clouting his second homer in two days, picked up another run in the fourth and then the gang went to work on Derringer in the fifth and Moore had to be rushed in to replace him. Before the inning was over, Hutchings was also called—the total damage was five runs and enough for Sailor Bill Ponder to coast home.

Ponder, incidentally, wasn't his usual effective self. He was clubbed for three runs in the first and settled down somewhat, although four double plays helped him no little.

Eddie Miller was again the sticking hero yesterday with a homer and double knocking in three runs. Chet Ross and Tony Cuccinello both came up with a pair of hits while everybody else except West and Hassett connected safely at least once.

The win made Manager Casey Stengel so rocky that he announced he was sending Lefty Joe Sullivan after the Reds. McKeech was so upset over the loss that he is sending his ace, Bucky Walters, to the hill. Walters will be shooting for his fifth straight triumph.

No club has dared send a left hander against those Reds who are oozing with right handed hitters but there seems to be no stopping those Bees these days and Sullivan may surprise today.

Lister Is Given Suffolk Stalls

a shaky infield. It finally caught up with us—that weakness.

KEYSTONE MARVELS

"Well, that shouldn't happen again. This time we've got the pitching and hitting, plus a great infield. This Lou Boudreau at short and Ray Mack at second are even greater than I thought they were going to be."

"Boudreau is making the kind of stops that break the other team's heart and Mack is hitting balls out of the lot. We're getting double plays where we used to get errors in the tight spots."

At this juncture there was a commotion in the lobby, and Vitt laughed.

"Look at that, will you?"

Young Bob Feller had strolled in, all unsuspecting, and instantly was surrounded and almost inundated by autograph seekers. The big boy signed about a dozen of them and then fled for the elevators.

SLUGGER FELLER

They're calling him "Sluggo" Feller, now, since he hit a triple in Boston the other day. The Indians were leading about 5 to 0 at the time of Robert's mighty swing. He made a powerful foot-first slide into third that nearly tore the bag from its moorings.

Vitt, after having ascertained that Feller hadn't broken an ankle, aimed himself sufficiently to ask Bob why he risked his million-dollar limbs like that.

"You never can tell when you'll need a run," answered Bob.

Yankees' Plunge Stuns Nation's Fans

Associated Press Sports Writer

The world champion New York Yankees are in last place in the American League today and perhaps the most amazing aspect of their strange situation is the complacency with which everyone is accepting their slump.

The season already has been a grab bag of many surprises, but none of them compares in portent with the break-down of the wonder team of baseball.

The same club that won four consecutive American League and world championships is out there floundering like a fish out of water day in and day out, losing 11 out of its 17 games, five in a row and nine to left-handed pitchers.

The Yanks were whipped unmercifully 10-4 yesterday by the Cleveland Indians, who started southpaw Al Smith against them and backed him up with a 14-hit attack that included two home runs by Hal Trosky and one by Rolfe Hemslay.

SMITH CASTOFF
Smith is a castoff of the New York Giants who pitched for Buffalo in the International League last year. The game yesterday was his first start as an American League hurler.

The same day a New York paper printed a cartoon showing a manager tapping a left-handed street sweeper on the shoulder and saying, "Left-handed, huh? You're going to pitch against the Yankees tomorrow."

Yet there isn't a manager who doesn't believe the Yanks will rise again to haunt them and Joe McCarthy keeps letting his starting pitchers go five, six, seven innings in the face of heavy hitting, still waiting confidently for one of those old-time big innings that will erase everything.

The fans are so stunned they don't know whether to believe their eyes. It may be just as well, because those Yanks have made hasty appraisals bounce before. Joe DiMaggio had a perfect day at bat yesterday and Joe Gordon hit a homer with two on in the eighth. The were due to get a look at right-handed pitching today—if Bobby Feller's fireball isn't too sizzling to look upon—and even though they're in eighth place they're only six and one-half games behind the leaders. Prudence may still be the best policy.

TIGERS LOSE GROUND

The Boston Red Sox kept on top of the pile yesterday, squeezing past the Detroit Tigers, 5-4, by bunting five hits for four runs in the fourth and sixth and one-half games behind the leaders. Prudence may still be the best policy.

There was some other shuffling in the standings. The Philadelphia Athletics outslugged the St. Louis Browns 10-3, with Benny McCoy getting four hits, to take over fourth place and the Chicago White Sox climbed out of the cellar with a 6-3 decision over Washington on the five-hit hurling of Ed Smith and Clint Brown.

Brooklyn's National League leaders were rained out at Chicago and the Cincinnati Reds were blocked out of a chance to move into a virtual tie when the surging Boston Bees pounded Paul Derringer off the mound and won 10-4. The Bees, who lost their first six straight but since have won six out of eight, clustered four runs in the first inning and five in the fifth.

GIANTS ON SPREE

The New York Giants plastered 11 hits against the Pirates for a 10-6 victory that not only ran Pittsburgh's string of defeat to eight but broke the Terryman's own losing streak at four. Babe Young got four consecutive hits and the Giants rolled up eight runs before the Pirates penetrated Cliff Melton's armament for their first score. It was the southpaw's third victory without a defeat.

Stu Martin hit two home runs to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-4 triumph over the Phillies, but Fiddler Bill McGee had to be rescued in the ninth when the Phils bunched three runs around a homer by Gus Suhr.

Overwork Hits Jim Bagby

Wilson stepped in and stopped the Tigers to give Bagby his second victory of the season.

Lefty Grove is a veteran and should consign himself to relief work. He'd pay dividends finishing games.

BAGBY OVERWORKED

Jim Bagby's inability to go the distance is due to overwork. Jim is one of the first players on the field daily at Fenway Park. He comes out of the dressing room at noon with the pitchers. While waiting his turn to hit Jim plays third base. He doesn't simply stand down at the bag. He really plays it, making a try for every ball that's hit in his direction, and also chasing foul balls. When it's time for him to hit, Jim takes as many cuts as the other hurlers, and then races back to third base.

So between noon and 2:30 when the visiting club takes batting practice Jim Bagby races around the infield every day without a let up. He's not over husky and the strenuous workouts which he subjects himself to daily have demanded their toll.

MUST GO EASIER

Bagby should be ordered to ease up. He has plenty of stuff to get him by in the American League and what is equally as important he really knows how to pitch. But he will fall by the wayside unless he conserves his strength by taking things easy between his regular turns on the hilltop.

For six innings yesterday, Jim Bagby had the Tigers practically eating out of his hand. But he lost his charm in the ensuing round and with the Red Sox lead reduced from 5 to 1 to 5 to 3, retired in favor of Jack Wilson, with the bases loaded and two men down. Until the fatal seventh, Bagby had held the Tigers to five hits, one of which was a bad pitch to Hank Greenberg and the ball landed in the vicinity of Kenmore square.

Jack Wilson got the Tigers out in the seventh inning by covering first base when Earl Averill hit to Jimmy Fox. He would have been unscored on but for a boot by Joe Cronin on a double play ball with one down in the ninth.

Betty's heart is heavy. The 20-year-old San Antonio girl has played in nine tournaments this season and, in her own words, has been "pretty badly handled in eight of them."

Only her city championship has been added to the national title. Just a few days ago, in semi-finals of the Texas tournament, she sought to win for the fifth consecutive time. She absorbed a humiliating 6 and 5 lacing from Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth. It was one of her worst defeats.

SOMETHING'S WRONG

The unaffected girl who plays with a wildflower between her teeth, the girl who won the American title when Patty Berg was out of competition last year, can't find her game.

"Something's wrong," she whispered. "I'm going to find out."

"Perhaps I should return to my old style of play. I don't like to think about that, however, for there was considerable criticism of my slow, deliberate play last year. I don't like criticism, even at the risk of hurting my game."

GAME QUICKENED

The husky, Auburn-haired girl who plays a man's game from the tee and fairway, has quickened her game. Only a year ago she was rated one of golf's most cautious players, especially on the greens.

Betty, one of the most popular champions in history because of her unassuming nature, realizes the southern tournament would be the spot for her comeback. The field will be dotted with some of the nation's best players.

"If I could only win this one—it's the tonic I need," she said.

VERSATILE—Finney's ability is not confined to hitting. He can field and throw with best in league. Note how high he stretches for line drive here. Critics claim he will remain in Red Sox lineup all season.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

AS THE RED SOX today hold a two-game lead for first place in the American League merry-go-round, players and fans agree that the person most responsible for this pleasant situation is Outfielder Lou Finney.

I was in the press box as the Red Sox nosed out a 5 to 4 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the first of their two-game series, and it was Finney who made the triumph possible. He connected for a smashing triple and a single as his batting contribution to the Sox win.

The Red Sox purchased Finney from the Athletics last season when they were in need of utility strength. Joe Vosmik, Doc Cramer and Ted Williams were then the Sox outfield trio with Leo Nonnenkamp the No. 1 utility outfielder.

It was said at the time that while Finney was a fair outfielder he couldn't hit, and that he lacked the fire necessary to be a regular. While with the Sox in 1939, Finney took part in numerous games, and showed to advantage.

The Sox chiefs still had the idea that Lou was merely a handy man to have around to take the place of some other player in case of injury. When Dominick DiMaggio was purchased from the San Francisco Seals, it was expected he would be a certainty to become a regular. DiMaggio had played center field on the Coast, and it was hinted he would occupy the same position with the Red Sox.

This was the "inside" story about the Cramer spring holdout. Doc held out for his regular center field berth.

Joe Vosmik was sold to Brooklyn, and Williams shifted to left field. This gave the right field berth to DiMaggio.

Nobody took time out to consult Lou Finney on any of these moves. He was rated merely as a handy ball player to have around, and neither Joe Cronin nor Eddie Collins figured he would become a Red Sox regular.

Finney Gets His Chance and Makes Good

DOMINICK DIMAGGIO suffered an ankle injury in Spring practice, and Finney moved into the picture. Lou's fielding and hitting has been so good that he has become the regular right fielder for the Sox.

Finney has been fighting for his job. He knows that young Dominick DiMaggio is an excellent big league prospect and that he will have to play brilliantly to keep the Coast youngster on the bench. That is what Finney has been doing. Lou has been a driving force in the victory march of the Sox.

In a close play at the plate in which he called out, Finney protested the decision with such force that Joe Cronin felt it wise to push him away from the umpire. It was an exhibition of aggressiveness that made a hit with Cronin and with the fans.

Finney is a good club player. He has always been willing to sacrifice personal glory for the good of the team.

Cronin could not bench Finney for DiMaggio or anybody else at this stage of the game, and, of course, does not intend to do so. Cronin realizes it would be unwise to break up a winning combination.

Bagby Tired After Fine Early Start

JIM BAGBY TIRED, and was obliged to give way to Jack Wilson after a fine early start. In addition to pitching good ball up to the point where he weakened, Bagby got two hits, and drove a fly to deep center field on which a run scored.

Bagby is one of the hardest workers on the Sox squad. He is among the first players to report for practice. He spends his time fielding, batting and pitching. It might be well for Bagby to curtail some of his early practice on days when he is going to pitch. If Jim conserved some of his energy, he might not tire during the closing stages of a game.

Dick Bartell Spark Plug of Tigers

DICK BARTELL, National League castoff, is the spark plug of the Tigers. Dick has been playing a swell game at shortstop. While Bartell is unpopular in Boston as a result of his mixup with Tony Cuccinello, the fans were quick to show appreciation of his playing.

Hank Greenberg looked lonesome playing left field for the Tigers. While "Hank" knocked a screeching home run over the left field fence, he failed on two occasions when he had opportunities to wreck the ball game.

Greenberg had a poor year at the bat in 1939, and this season he finds himself fighting to hold his job. Hank would naturally rather play first base than left field. The first base job has been definitely given to Rudy York who was a star minor league first baseman before he became a big league catcher. York has always had the desire to play the position that first gained him fame. Meanwhile Hank has been exiled to the outfield. He must do some hitting to hold that berth.

Detroit has a good looking ball club, and with a few improvements would be able to give Red Sox and Indians a serious challenge in the struggle to take over the Yankees' former possessions.

The Yankees are still in the league, but it would be necessary to turn the standing upside down to place Joe McCarthy's club at the head of the parade. The champs are suffering from a bad case of southpawitis. It seems incurable.

Woman to Referee Amateur Bout On West Coast

PASADENA, Cal., May 9 (AP)—The only woman boxing referee in the country, Mrs. Belle Martell of Los Angeles, makes her initial appearance here tonight on the weekly amateur ring card.

Object of some criticism when the California Athletic Commission broke precedent and issued her a license, Mrs. Martell made her bow last week at San Bernardino. An inspector's report to the commission, it was understood, was favorable.

Mrs. Martell, identified with amateur boxing in Southern California for nine years, already holds as the only woman a license to announce and keep time on bouts.

Foxx Prepares For Summer Blitzkrieg

Many fans know that ballplayers think more of their shoes and gloves than they do of any other articles of their business, but few realize that hitters watch over their bats like they would a youngster.

Jimmy Foxx, the Red Sox cloud-or, takes better care of his bats than probably any other man in the business. At the present time, Foxx has a box of bats in the dryer of the Sox dressing room, getting them ready for murderous attacks on opposing pitchers around the first off June.

The dryer puts home run life into the war clubs. In addition, Foxx spends plenty of time on the grips of his bats.
